LOCAL AND OTHERWISE.

—The O. and N. pay train will be in to-day.

—The weather of the past week has given early gardeners a backset.

—Children's tickets to Queen Esther will be sold at half price on the night of the entertainment.

—Marshal Griffith has turned over the contract for dieting the city prisoners to Turnkey Yager.

—In the police court yesterday, Wm. Frakes, for drunkenness, was assessed the usual fine of two dollars and costs.

—The Juvenile missionary society of the Methodist church will give a candy-pulling at the city hall, Friday evening; admission 10 cents.

—W. A. Guenther & Son have determined to add a hardware department to their business, and will open out a new stock the first of April, in the adjoining storeroom, now occupied as a barber shop.

—Passengers for Louisville yesterday morning, via the O. and N., were disappointed in purchasing round-trip tickets at one fare, as had been unauthoritatively announced, for the prohibitionists' convention. They were not on sale.

—A Louisville lady has been made a notary public. An Owensboro notary, who does a great deal of work for thanks only, is tempted to turn over his commission and seal to some pretty young lady who would not be imposed on.

—A four-year-old child of Mr. Messenschlæger, on Snow Hill, threw a bunch of lighted paper in a basket of clothes yesterday morning, and it appeared for a time that the house would be burned down. The fire was put out before serious damage was done.

—Dr. Benson's subject at Temple Adath Israel to-morrow evening will be "The Chosen People; have they been rejected?" The ministers of the city are especially invited to attend the service, which will commence at 7½ o'clock instead of 7 as heretofore.

—Paupers still apply to the county judge for aid, and that official kindly tells one and all, who appear to be in the least worthy, that the doors of the poor-house are open to them. A majority of them become indignant at the suggestion of going to the poor-house. Two applications for aid were made yesterday.

—The MESSENGER's regular Uppertown carrier is sick, and his substitute, being unfamiliar with the route, it is possible that some of the subscribers may fail to get their papers this morning. Any who are overlooked will confer a favor by reporting the fact to the office in person, or by telephone, and they will be supplied at once.

—Alfred Hershaw and Jennie Barnett, a colored couple, were married in the county clerk's office late yesterday afternoon, by Judge Atchison. The bride was much agitated at the beginning of the ceremony, but the gentle tones and beautiful language of the poet judge soothed her into composure before the end. The usual curious crowd, who never grow tired, congregated to witness the marriage.

—Dr. M. J. Keplinger, of Rumsey, McLean county, denies that the difficulty between him and one Woodrell grew out of a game of cards. The doctor says he has not played a game of cards for fifteen years. He says Woodrell attacked him with a pistol while drunk without provocation, and that he threatened to slap him over if he attempted to use it. Beyond this he had nothing to do with Woodrell.

—The negro Jo. Davis, who was so frequently afflicted with epileptic fits, died Tuesday. Mary Handley, who from appearances was a particular friend of the deceased, raised such a disturbance in venting her grief that it was found necessary to call in the police. Officer Reynolds arrested her and started her off to the lock-up, but she broke loose from him and it was only after a lively chase that he caught her again. She then fired such a volley of abuse at him that he found it necessary to tap her with his mace to silence her. Mary was fined only a few days ago for street-walking.

—The Educational Courant, published at Louisville, contains the following: "The Educational Weekly of Indianapolis, Indiana, has a good word to say of two of our Kentucky teachers. Professor Goodwin is a live man, and under his efficient supervision the schools of Owensboro are rapidly improving. Here is what the Weekly says: 'Indiana teachers carry with them the spirit and energy of the Hoosier State, wherever they go. Our old friend, A. C. Goodwin, formerly of Clark county, seems to be infusing life and vigor in the schools of Owensboro, Kentucky, while his first assistant, W. A. Hester, also an Indiana man, in addition to the management of the high school, is editor-in-chief of the Home and School, a sprightly paper published monthly at Owensboro, Kentucky. May success always attend their efforts.'"

ARRESTED FOR ARSON.

A GRAVE CHARGE AGAINST A FORMER DAVIESS COUNTY MAN.

R. W. Adams Accused of Burning His Tobacco Factory at Chrisney, Ind., to Make Himself Whole on a Bad Purchase.

At three o'clock Tuesday morning, a tobacco factory at Chrisney, Ind., a few miles from Rockport on the Air-Line railroad, was burned. The factory was rented last fall and has been occupied by Adams & Short, a firm composed of two Kentuckians who are well known in this section.

Mr. R. W. Adams, the senior member, is a son of Mr. Elisha Adams, Sr., of this county, and a brother of Esq. Geo. Adams, the popular young magistrate. He has not lived in Daviess county, however, for about three years, having been located at South Carrollton, Ky., where he was engaged in the tobacco business until he went to Chrisney. Mr. J. H. Short, the junior member of the firm, is a representative of an old and respected family of McLean county, who has made his home at Central City, Ky., for the past year or two.

On the night before the fire, Mr. Short, accompanied by Henry Noonan, a young man from South Carrollton, who had been in the employ of the firm, went from Chrisney to Rockport on business, and on going to the depot next morning to return to Chrisney, they were notified by telegraph of the fire. When they arrived at Chrisney they found that Mr. Adams had been arrested on a warrant sworn out by D. J. Smith, a magistrate who charged him with burning the tobacco house.

Adams was taken before another magistrate for trial and Smith testified that on the night of the 5th inst., he was passing the factory and saw Adams coming out of it. When Adams saw him he said: "Smith, can you keep a secret?" He replied that he could. "Well, then," said Adams, "you just keep mum if anything happens." In fifteen minutes a fire broke out in the factory. Some men and boys playing cards in a saloon near by discovered it, and rushed over and put out the fire. It was discovered that a deliberate plan to burn the building had been laid. In one end of the house lay a quantity of loose hay. A lot of kindling-wood saturated with coal oil was also discovered, and a train of hay had been laid around the walls.

Smith spoke to no one at the time about meeting Adams, or of the conversation between them. No evidence of incendiary work was discovered about the second fire, as the building was entirely burned before any one reached the scene. But, on the strength of the former case, Smith swore out the warrant.

There was great excitement and indignation in the community, and, during Adams' trial, threats of mobbing him were freely made. The magistrate before whom he was tried first intimated that he would hold him over for final trial under $1,000 bond, but the crowd in the court room manifested its dissatisfaction so emphatically that he placed it at $2,000. Adams, being in a community of strangers, with only his partner and young Noonan to befriend him, was compelled to go to jail. Yesterday Messrs. Short and Noonan came to Owensboro and told Adams' relatives of the difficulty. A bond was quickly made up, and Esq. Geo. Adams left on the noon boat to procure the release of his brother.

The tobacco house was owned by Milton Beasley. An insurance policy of $700 on it was recently cancelled. Beasley offered to sell the house to Adams & Short for $400. The tobacco in the house was insured with companies represented by J. C. Rudd & Son, of this city, for $4,000. Mr. Short claims that there was at least $5,000 worth of tobacco in the house, and though he is confident the fire was the work of an incendiary, he is convinced his partner did not set fire to it. The firm were advanced $7,000 by the Farmers' Warehouse, of Louisville, in the fall, and, though they have been shipping to them all the season, they are still in debt to the Louisville parties $3,600.

The accusers of Adams say that the firm had made a bad purchase on which they would have lost heavily, and that Adams' scheme was to "play for even" on the insurance money.

Mr. Adams has borne an honorable name and an unsullied character, and his Owensboro friends are firm in their belief in his innocence. He is married and has a family of three children.

Whisky Men Uneasy.

Considerable uneasiness has been manifest among the distillers and whisky dealers since the appointment of the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who, it is feared, will be unfriendly to the interests of the liquor dealers.

A report was circulated on the streets yesterday afternoon that the recent ruling in regard to export bonds had been already reversed, but it could be traced to no reliable source.

It is known that the President and the Secretary of the Treasury both told Mr. Carlisle, when he was pressing Phil Thompson's claims, that they were in full accord with him in his views of the revenue system. The new Commissioner has not expressed himself, but as Randall was his principal supporter, and as Randall is the arch enemy of the whisky men and the internal revenue system, it would seem that there is room for apprehension.

—A loaded box-car in the south-bound accommodation train, John Hildebrand conductor, was derailed near Belton, nine miles south of Central City yesterday, and a brakeman, Wm. Hildebrand, a brother of the conductor was thrown off and suffered a slight injury of the back. The damage to the car was not serious, but on account of its weight the work of clearing it from the track was slow and tedious. The train was delayed several hours, but by the time the evening passenger train from Owensboro arrived, the work was almost accomplished, and the passenger train arrived at Russellville only fifteen minutes late. Passengers for the north-bound train made their connection.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wile celebrated their wooden wedding at the Planters House Tuesday evening. About twenty couples were present, and a fine supper was served. The hostess was the recipient of quite a number of useful presents.

A Costly Case.

The quite celebrated suit of C. Moseley against R. C. Fuqua in the circuit court has again resulted in a hung jury, and it begins to appear that when the case is eventually decided, one or both the parties will have enormous costs to pay. The suit is all about a horse, or rather a mare, but a very fine one it is said.

Pat Monahon, in 1878, while using a horse belonging to Mr. Moseley, overworked it and it died. To make good to him his loss, Mr. Moseley claims, Monahon gave him this mare, which afterward proved to be a thoroughbred racer. Monahon made his home with Moseley and continued to use the mare, but she, as well as her colts as they were foaled, was considered the property of Moseley. In the fall of 1882, the plaintiff avers, having a job of public work in the vicinity of Fuqua's, Monahon rode the mare down there and put up at Fuqua's. He stayed there until he was taken sick, when he went to his brother's, leaving the mare at Fuqua's. Monahon died at his brother's, and afterward Fuqua produced a will, which was probated in the county court, in which the mare was bequeathed to him by Monahon. Mosely brought suit for the recovery of the mare, and got possession of her on a writ of delivery, and the suit has never been settled. The mare at one time was valued at $1,000, but she is now getting old.

Adjudged a Lunatic.

In the circuit court, Tuesday, Mrs. Ellen E Thompson was adjudged a lunatic. She suffered a paralytic stroke, affecting the tongue, in February, 1884, from which she apparently recovered, but this was followed by mental derangement resulting in lunacy. She was born and reared and has always lived in Daviess county, and is in her forty-seventh year. She has been twice married and has now been a widow six years. She has no property save a dower interest for life in a town lot valued at $900. Her brother, Wm. McDonald, was once adjudged a lunatic. Wm. Pinkston was directed to take her to the lunatic asylum at Hopkinsville.

DEATHS.

Mr. C. R. Kirk, of South Hampton neighborhood, died yesterday. Within two weeks Mr. Kirk's wife and two children died of measles, and two more children, the last of the family, are now hopelessly ill with the same disease. Mr. Kirk was himself first taken with measles, but died of pneumonia. The afflictions of this family have been remarkably distressing.

On the 15th inst. Mr. P. D. Johnson, who lived between Yelvington and Knottsville, father of Mr. W. S. Johnson, of this city, died of pneumonia. He was 60 years old.

CUT HIS EYE OUT.

This Capital Operation as Performed by Dr. Barker, Who is at the Planter's House.

On Tuesday of last week, Dr. Barker, the renowned oculist and aurist arrived in this city, and has since been kept busy at his room at the Planter's House, administering relief to the afflicted who have flocked to see him. He has performed many very remarkable operations, but none of them more wonderful than that of removing an eye from the head of John Conyers, a very estimable young man, well known in this city. Some time ago Mr. Conyers caught cold, which settled in his eye, and resulted in a serious case of sore eyes. With bad management this terminated in one eye becoming entirely blind and the other fast giving way from sympathy. Upon examination, Dr. Barker found it was imperatively necessary to remove the destroyed organ in order to save the other. At the first blush the decision semed terrible, but with the skill of Dr. Barker, and the use of surgical instruments, the work was quickly performed, causing but little pain or loss of blood. Ether was administered. This done, the Dr. inserted a surgical instrument over the eye which exposed the ball to a full gaze. The eye-ball was soon brought to the surface where the doctor could work under it. With one moan from the patient, science and skill had done something, for which those present seemed to hold the doctor in awe as something supernatural. The muscles were then gathered up and sewed together and the lid allowed to drop back in its natural position.

On last Saturday the doctor removed a cataract from the eye of Mr. R. H. Bishop, of this city. The straightening of cross eyes is almost a daily occurrence. It will be noticed from his advertisement that owing to the inability to serve the great number requiring his services in the time first announced, Dr. Barker will remain until Saturday, April 4th.

CATARRH

In all its forms cured permanently. $50 REWARD for a case he cannot cure.

Treats successfully all diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose, Throat and Lungs. Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Kidney and Speen, Constipation, Diarrhœ, Diabetes, Dropsy, Piles, Diseases of the Bladder and Rectum, Fits, Scrofula, Heart Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Chronic Chills, Cold Hands and Feet, and all malarial poisons removed from the system. Private diseases receive special attention.

To Catarrh Sufferers.

For several years I have been suffering with Catarrh, and though I have tried many remedies, I have found no permanent relief, but grew constantly worse. Through the suggestion of a friend and the greatest desire to be cured, I began treatment under Dr. Coffee. He relieved me at once of Asthma, and has done me more good than all other remedies combined that I have tried for Catarrh. His method of treating the disease is bound to be effectual, and it is my opinion that those suffering with Catarrh ought to take advantage of his superior treatment and be cured.
